Billboard in West Palm Beach from PatientRightsAdvocate.org. | PatientRightsAdvocate.org

BILLBOARD — The national health transparency organization PatientRightsAdvocate.orgjust put up a billboard in Trump's backyard of West Palm Beach to highlight a law he signed during his first term that made hospitals post what they charged for surgeries and other medical care. The billboard will stay up through March 2 and is intended to push incoming health officials to enforce the law so that patients can more easily shop around for care. The group wants regulation changes after former President JOE BIDEN's administration allowed hospitals to post algorithms or formulas instead of prices.
